The Chaucer Society.

Editor in Chief:—Rev. PROFESSOR W. W. SKEAT, Litt.D.

Hon. Sec.:—W. A. DALZIEL, Esq., 67, Victoria Road, Finsbury Park, London, N.

To do honour to CHAUCER, and to let the lovers and students of him see how far the best unprinted Manuscripts of his works differ from the printed texts, this Society was founded in 1868. There were then, and are still, many questions of metre, pronunciation, orthography, and etymology yet to be settled, for which more prints of Manuscripts were and are wanted; and it is hardly too much to say that every line of Chaucer contains points that need reconsideration. The founder (Dr Furnivall) began with The Canterbury Tales, and has given of them (in parallel columns in Royal 4to) six of the best theretofore unprinted Manuscripts known. Inasmuch as the parallel arrangement necessitated the alteration of the places of certain tales in some of the MSS, a print of each MS has been issued separately, following the order of its original. The first six MSS printed have been: the Ellesmere (by leave of the Earl of Ellesmere); the Hengwrt (by leave of W. W. E. Wynne, Esq.); the Camb. Univ. Libr., MS Gg. 4. 27; the Corpus, Oxford; the Petworth (by leave of Lord Leconfield); and the Lansdowne 851 (Brit. Mus.). The Harleian 7334 has followed, and the Cambridge Dd., completed by Egerton 2726 (the Haistwell MS.). Specimens of all accessible MSS of the Tales are now nearly completed, edited by the late Prof. Zupitza, Ph.D., and Prof. John Koch, Ph.D. Lady Cardigan will not allow her MS to be seen.

Of Chaucer's Minor Poems,—the MSS of which are generally later than the best MSS of the Canterbury Tales,—all the available MSS have been printed, so as to secure all the existing evidence for the true text.

Of Troilus, Parallel-Texts from the 6 best MSS have been issued (the Campsall MS also separately), and a 7th MS text of it with the english Boccaccio Comparison.

Autotypes of most of the best Chaucer MSS have been publisht.

The Society's publications are issued in two Series, of which the first contains the different texts of Chaucer's works; and the Second, such originals of and essays on these as can be procured, with other illustrative treatises, and Supplementary Tales.

The yearly subscription, which constitutes Membership, is 2 guineas, beginning with January 1, 1868, and ending with 1910. All the Society's Publications can still be had—except First Series, No. XLVIII.

The Society's Hon. Secs. for America are, Prof. Kittredge, of Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass., for the North and East, and Prof. Bright, of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, for the South and West. Members' names and subscriptions should be sent to the home Hon. Sec., W. A. Dalziel, 67 Victoria Road, Finsbury Park, London, N.

FIRST SERIES.

The Society's issue for 1868, in the First Series, is,

I. The Prologue and Knight's Tale, of the Canterbury Tales, in 6 parallel Texts (from the 6 MSS named below), together with Tables, showing the Groups of the Tales, and their varying order in 38 MSS of the Tales, and in 5 old printed editions, and also Specimens from several MSS of the "Moveable Prologues" of the Canterbury Tales,—The Shipman's Prologue, and Franklin's Prologue,—when moved from their right places, and of the Substitutes for them. (The Six-Text, Part I.)

II—VII. II. The Prologue and Knight's Tale from the Ellesmere MS, Part I; III. Hengwrt MS, 154, Pt I; IV. Cambridge MS Gg. 4. 27, Pt I; V. Corpus MS, Oxford, Pt I; VI. Petworth MS, Pt I; VII. Lansdowne MS, 851, Pt I (separate issues of the Texts forming Part I of the Six-Text edition.)

The issue for 1869, in the First Series, is,

VIII—XIII. VIII. The Miller's, Reeve's, and Cook's Tales: Ellesmere MS, Part II; IX. Hengwrt MS, Pt II; X. Cambridge MS, Pt II; XI. Corpus MS, Pt II; XII. Petworth MS, Pt II; XIII. Lansdowne MS, Pt II, with an Appendix of "Gamelyn" from six MSS.

(separate issues of the Texts forming the Six-Text, Part II, No. XIV.)

The issue for 1870, in the First Series, is,

XIV. The Miller's, Reeve's, and Cook's Tales, with an Appendix of the Spurious Tale of Gamelyn, in 6 parallel Texts. (Six-Text, Part II.)

The issue for 1871, in the First Series, is,

XV. The Man of Law's, Shipman's, and Prioress's Tales, with Chaucer's own Tale of Sir Thopas, in 6 parallel Texts from the MSS above named, and 10 coloured drawings of Tellers of Tales, after the originals in the Ellesmere MS. (Six-Text, Part III.)

XVI. The Man of Law's Tale, from the Ellesmere MS. Part III.

XVII. " " " " " Cambridge MS. Part III.

XVIII. " " " " " Corpus MS. Part III.

XIX. The Shipman's, Prioress's, and Man of Law's Tales, from the Petworth MS. Part III.

Introduction.

More than ten years ago I had promised the late Dr. FURNIVALL* to write a Comparison of the eight leading Mss. of the CANTERBURY TALES for the CHAUCER SOCIETY, but owing partly to the often onerous duties of my college-work, partly to more urgent obligations of another sort, I had to postpone the fulfilment of my promise till I found leisure to settle finally to this task, I think in 1908, devoting as much time to it as I then could spare; but considering the enormous size of the poem, the progress could only be very slow. When I had nearly finished the first cast of it, the meritorious director of the Chaucer Society unfortunately died, and it was resolved that the Society should come to a close. On my application to Prof. W. W. SKEAT,** who had taken the affairs in hand, I was answered that there were not enough funds left to have my researches printed as a publication of the CHAUCER SOCIETY. This was rather a blow to me, and I was afraid that all my work, as far as it had advanced till then, would be in vain. Then Professor HOOPS of Heidelberg, to whom I wrote, kindly advised me to enter into negotiation with the wellknown publisher Mr. WINTER of the same place, and the latter, indeed, was inclined to have it printed for me, on condition that he should receive some support in England. On a second application to Prof. SKEAT, he acknowledged that the late CHAUCER SOCIETY was under a sort of obligation to me, and in a most friendly way promised to assist Mr. WINTER and me as much as possible. But now another condition was imposed upon me: to shorten the size of my Ms. The consequence was that I had to rewrite the greater part of my work, but I trust now that the new arrangement and the contractions made necessary will turn out a great advantage. At the same time I was obliged to omit all details of minor importance, to introduce a number of abbreviations, which, however, I hope will not interfere with the clear understanding of my deductions, and to substitute frequent references instead of giving in full the passage in question—an inconvenience which I must beg my readers kindly to excuse under those circumstances.

** Whose decease is now also to be lamented.

For the same reason I must content myself with a few remarks on the general character and the relations of the Mss. here treated of, at the end of each paragraph, as a comprising discussion of the various readings would occupy much more space than is permitted to me, and this the more so as from the comparatively few complete Mss. at my disposal it would be impossible to arrive at a definite result as to the connection of their wide-spread ramifications. Still I hope to have in my concluding paragraph drawn some conclusions which will not be without interest in the still unsettled question of constructing a really critical text of the CANTERBURY TALES.

For shortness' sake I must also refer my readers to the descriptions of the Mss. in question found in Dr. FURNIVALL'S Temporary Preface, p. 44—85, to Prof. SKEAT'S Editions, to the Specimens of all accessible Mss. of the Pardoner's Prologue and Tale, Parts I and VIII, of the Clerk's Tale, Parts VI, VII, IX, and the Introductions to them by the late Prof. ZUPITZA and myself; further to the Introduction to my edition of the Pardoner's Tale, etc., p. XXX sqq., and to Miss HAMMOND'S Chaucer, a Bibliographical Manual, p. 173 sqq.

According to my former researches, all the Mss. of the C. T. are to be divided into two large groups, called A-Type and B-Type, which together go back to one common source, a copy of the poet's original. Though at first only proved to exist for the Pardoner's and the Clerk's Tales, this division will also be found to hold good for the rest of Chaucer's great work, and so I have adopted it unhesitatingly for the present arrangement of the Mss. (cp. § 72). Before enumerating them according to this scheme, I will remark that the abbreviations for their titles are, with a few slight modifications, the same as used by ZUPITZA and myself in the fore-named Specimens.

I. The A-Type.

a) The completely printed Mss.

1. The Ellesmere Ms., the most complete of all; for its special readings, s. § 27 . . . . . Ell.
2. The Hengwrt Ms., without the Chan. Yemans T., and mutilated towards the end (s. Nos. 6, 7, 14, 20, 22 below). For special readings, s. § 42 . . . . . Hen.
3. The Cambridge Univ. Libr. Ms. Gg. 4. 27, which, besides some omissions, has lost several leaves (s. Nos. 13, 15, 22, 24); special readings s. § 50 . . . . . Gg.
4. The Cambridge Univ. Libr. Ms. Dd. 4. 24., also partly mutilated (s. Nos. 5 & 21). Special readings, s. § 54 . . Dd.

b) Mss. from which only extracts have been printed.

5. The Egerton Ms. 2726 (formerly Haistwell Ms.), used to supply the losses of Dd.: A 1—252, 504—758, 919—1170, 1502—1934, 2681—2682, 2754—2782, 2927—3016; B 530 to 710, 1584—1663, 1837—1934, 2246—2289, 4000—4079, 4353—4356; F 673—753, 1472—1564; G 711, 856—I 1085 [1086—1092 in an 18th century hand]. Besides F 679/80 in Co. Eg.
6. The Additional Ms. 5140, employed to fill up the gaps in several Mss.; B 3961—80 (Pe.), 4233—38 (id.), 4637—52 (cp. Dd. and Ro.<sup>1</sup>); D 2159—2294 (Pe.), 1646/47 (Lan.), 2356/57 (Pe.), 2419—40 (Lan.); F 1—8 (Lan.), 673—708 (id.), 1147/48 (Pe.), 1191—96 (id.), G 103 (Lan.), I. 887 to 944, and 1044—1092 for Hen. (instead of Ch.). . . Ad<sup>1</sup>.
7. The Christ Church Ms. 152, Oxford, for Hen., I 551—887, 944 to 1044; suppl. from Ad.<sup>1</sup> . . . . . Ch.
8. The 4 Hodson Mss., referred to in Dd., B 2185 sqq. (§ 54), especially the Hodson Ms. 39., for Eg., B 2256, 2266 . . Hod.

II. The B-Type.

a) The completely printed Mss.

9. The Corpus Christi College Ms., Oxford. Contains the spurious Gamelyn. Besides several omissions, a number of leaves have been lost towards the end. (S. Nos. 13, 17, 19, 21, 23). Special readings, s. § 68 . . . . . Co.

10. The Petworth Ms. Has the Gamelyn, but frequent omissions (S. Nos. 6, 15, 21). Special readings, s. § 70 . Pe.
11. The Lansdowne Ms. Similar to Pe. Gamelyn. (S. Nos. 6, 13, 14, 15, 18, 19, 21, 22, 24.). Special readings, s. § 69 Lan.
12. The Harleian Ms. 7334. Gamelyn. Frequent omissions and loss of several leaves in Fragment F. Not supplied from another Ms. Special readings, s. § 71 . . . . . Har.<sup>4</sup>

As an Appendix to C, the different forms of the Doctor-Pardoner Link have been printed according to a number of Mss., among which there are several of the above list (Har. <sup>2</sup>, Ro. <sup>2</sup>, li., Har. <sup>4</sup>, Ro. <sup>1</sup>, Har. <sup>3</sup>, Har. <sup>5</sup>, Ad. <sup>1</sup>, Ad. <sup>2</sup>, Se., Hat., Dd., Lan. <sup>1</sup>, etc.). But as the question of their relation has been more fully treated in the Specimens mentioned before, it is not necessary to enter into it here. Neither will I re-open the discussion of the evolution of the text and of the right order of the Tales or the different Fragments, lately treated by Professors SKEAT and TATLOCK*, but merely state that, though I now believe Dr. FURNIVALL'S arrangement in the Six-Text Print to be a mistaken one**, deviating from all Mss. in existence chiefly on the authority of a very doubtful one (Se.), I have followed him in order to facilitate the comparison of my lists with the printed text, and retained the letters designating the single Soc., 2nd Ser. 38, and 'The Eight-text Edition of the Canterbury Tales', 2nd Ser. 43, both reviewed by me in Engl. stud. 41, p. 127 sqq. and Anglia, Beibl. XXII, p. 266—7, here together with Prof. TATLOCK'S 'The Harl. Manuscript 7334 and Revision of the C. T.', 2nd Ser. 41.

Fragments (A—I). A future editor, however, will have to adopt the order of the Ell. Ms.; but here-of another time.

Further I wish to point out that I have disregarded here the subdivisions into which the Mss. of each of the two Types, according to the 'Specimens, etc.', ought to be classed, because only part of the codices come here into consideration, and consequently have simplified the designation of Co.+Pe.+Lan. as Corpus Group (Cogr.), in order to distinguish them from Har.<sup>4</sup>, instead of separating Pe. from them as the head of the largest group of Mss. that have come down to us. If I have gone so far beyond the strict limits of my task as to have admitted also the extracts taken from the less important codices into my researches, I have thought this proceeding necessary, because without their assistance not much more than half of the text of the C. T. could have been examined thoroughly. Besides, some of the Mss. from which larger portions have been borrowed in order to supply the losses or omissions of the leading ones, are so similar in character and in their relation to the other texts, especially Eg. and Dd., Se. and Co., Ch., Ad.<sup>1</sup> and Hen., that I have not hesitated to place their readings directly, though in brackets, together with those for which they are meant to serve as substitutes. Otherwise, when a Ms. of the B-Type has been used by Dr. Furnivall to fill up the gaps of one of the A-Type (thus Har.<sup>2</sup> and Sl.<sup>1</sup> frequently for Gg.), such common readings have been placed under a particular head [marked h or β].

As for the principles which have led me to exclude or include the various readings from or into my enumerations, I will just say that, though mere differences in spelling or dialect have, as a rule, been neglected by me to avoid the swelling of this book into enormous dimensions, I have carefully registered all cases which I believed to be relevant for the decision whether there exists a closer or remoter connection of certain Mss. with each other, and so also minor details, orthographic peculiarities, which seemed to be characteristic of some of them, side-notes, glosses, headings, and colophons have occasionally been mentioned. For though the agreements of two or more Mss. may be of little importance for the restoration of the original reading, their more or less frequent occurrence assists us in answering the question of their affinity.

If a look into the following pages should cause one or other of my readers to ask what can have originated such a bewildering number of varieties in the tradition of Chaucer's text, I must beg him to consider first that sixty and more years had elapsed since the poet's composing those lines till most of the copies now extant were written, and that they were not taken directly from the original, but from intermediate sources, sometimes already contaminated with others. To the same circumstance are no doubt due the alterations or interpretations of certain words which meanwhile had grown obsolete. The omission of whole lines and sentences is frequently to be accounted for, particularly in the prose treatises, by the facility with which the eye of a negligent scribe jumped from one word to its next repetition. Then, to explain the many deviations of the B-Type from the other, we must assume that its common original was a badly and carelessly written Ms., and that its later copyists, not understanding or misreading certain passages, thought themselves obliged to alter them, so that they might give at least some sense, or to fill up gaps by lines of their own—often poor enough—invention. Others, however, looked for some other Ms. that seemed to them more trustworthy than the one they had before them, and at that period unable to form a critical judgment, picked out of it one expression here and another there which seemed to them to improve their own text. Then, perhaps, came a corrector, who made again alterations, partly availing himself of a third Ms., and partly following his own taste. The same course also the later copies of the A-Type seem to have gone through, and that this is not a mere phantastical imagination, is shown by later corrections entered into them, most frequently into Gg., but occasionally also into other Mss., which are all minutely described in Dr. FURNIVALL'S publication, but only repeated by myself in cases where they seemed to me of interest for the relations or characterization of a codex. The same may be said of the sidenotes and glosses, which are most frequent in Ell. (especially in Fragments C, D, E, & I), next in Hen. and Dd., most rare in Gg. and Har.<sup>4</sup>, but the problem whether some of them, particularly those found the same in Mss. of different groups, may not be traced back to Chaucer himself must be left aside for the present*. Also the question of dialect can be touched only slightly here; and I must refer my readers for some remarks on this subject to Dr. FURNIVALL'S 'Temporary Preface' alluded to before. On the whole, however, the classification of our Mss. into two large groups finds some foundation by the observation that those of the B-Type now and then show Northern influence (s. the concluding remarks in §§ 68—71), whilst Gg. has several Midland peculiarities (e. g. A. 3260, 3562), and Ell. and Hen., partly also Dd., belong to the dialect of London or its neighbourhood**, from which circumstance naturally result a number of differences in the texts to be compared here. These do not only consist in the use of other words or forms, but also in the use of certain letters. Whilst the scribes of Ell. and Hen., for instance, write th (þ only sometimes in þat), y, sh, those of the Co.-group have, though uncertain in the beginning, almost regularly þ, ȝ, sch (sh Pe.), and Har.<sup>4</sup> vacillates between þ and th. Ell. and Hen. designate i before or after m, n, u by y, whereas there seems to exist no certain rule in the interchange between y and i in the other Mss. While ght is preferred by most Mss., Lan. has ht, Pe. ȝt (at first the same as Lan.). Peculiar to Pe. is the use of scl for sl, e. g. sclawe A 943, scle A 1740, sclydere A 1267, etc. For some more differences of this kind, s. § 2.

Hoping that these general remarks will help my readers better to understand the existence of so many and varied deviations of the Mss. from each other before they begin their examination, I have still to add that I have entirely relied on the exactitude of the copies made of them for their prints in the Ch. Soc. publications, though in some places (marked [?]) I have the suspicion that Dr. FURNIVALL or his helpmates have misread a few letters not very distinctly written in the original. That some caution in this respect is necessary, has lately been shown by a list published by Prof. FLÜGEL* in which he, after a careful collation of the Ms., enumerates several mistakes made in the reproduction of the Ellesmere-Ms., of which due notice has been taken in the following pages.

The arrangement of my material does not require a long explanation, and the particular treatment of Ell. (§ 27) will, I hope, be consented to on account of its unique position. To facilitate the survey of the lists of the lectio variorum, I have inserted the titles (partly abbreviated) of the single Tales into the paragraphs of some length, but without separating the Prologues or Links from them, which I thought would have impeded rather than promoted the clearness of the text. — Further, those passages which seemed to me of special interest, as the omission or addition of whole lines or sentences, have been made conspicuous by full-faced type of their numbers, whilst the references of minor importance for the context, merely pointing out parallel passages, etc., are enclosed in brackets. The enumeration of such and of the quotations registering the recurrence of the same peculiarity of a Ms. is not meant to be exhaustive, though I hope not to have overlooked any of consequence. —

Finally I wish to observe that what I have called a 'good reading' does not always imply that it was also the poet's own expression, which must often enough remain doubtful, and that the word 'Isolated reading' (s. §§ 27, 42, 50, 54, 68—71) is merely used in relation to the restricted number of Mss. to be treated here, as, in fact, these readings are frequently joined by codices not included in the present researches, which, e. g., is shown in the Pard. Tale., where the mistakes of Pe. mentioned under that head in § 70 are mostly also found in other Mss. belonging to the same group. — As for the metrical rules that I have followed, it will suffice to refer to my remarks on that subject in my Edition of the 'Pardoner', p. XVI sq. —

*A thorough examination of the above readings would in most cases teach us, which of them are to be considered as really Chaucerian ones; but there being here no room for a long discussion, I have thought it preferable to leave this question open for the present — and so in some of the following §§. — But in order to mark still more decisively the line of division between the two Types, I wish to point out that each of them gives preference to a certain form of some frequently used words, i. e. whilst the Ellgr. commonly has koude, swich, nat, the Cognr. and Har.<sup>4</sup> have coupe, such, not (nought). In the beginning of the A-Fragment, this peculiarity is, indeed, not so clearly visible, as in several cases some Ms. of one Type adopts the usual form of the other, but later on this difference becomes quite distinct. A few instances must suffice. Whilst in A coupe is sometimes found in Gg. (130, 236, 257, 258, 383, 417, 490, etc.), coude (cowde) is discovered in Har.<sup>4</sup> (106, 110, 474, 476, 562, 3259, 3300, 3927, 4104) — but never afterwards, though Co. and more frequently Pe. now and then show the latter form (cp. § 57, A 325, § 60, B 195) All 4 Mss.*

of the B-Type have coupe A 326, 602, 1422, 3253, B 1712, 1735, 3375, 3398, 4127, D 361, 386, 387, 448; etc., E 1106, 1434, 1511, 2033, etc., F 39, 240, 283, 1413, etc., G 291, etc. Both forms secured by rymes: A 390, 713, F 421, H 93. — As for swich and such, the case seems to be similar in the Gen. Prol. and Kn. T.; but here Eg., which generally writes soch, is repeatedly used to fill up the gaps of Dd.; afterwards, however, the two forms are mostly separated according to the two Types (e. g. A 655, 2438, 3349, B 49, 80, 159 . . 1135, 1408, 1752 . . 3884, 3929, 4084 . . C 400, 643 . . D 81, 136, 147 . . 1109, 2058 . . E 193, 259, 336 . . 739, 839 . . 1166, 1186 . . F 133, 227 . . 836 . . 1341 . . G 22, 51, 512, etc. [from here Eg. !], though single Mss. of the B-Type sometimes incline for swich (e. g. Co. A 2314, 2476, 2563, . . B 43, 153 . . D 110, 1124 . . F 248, 368, 508, etc.; Pe. A 243, 247, B 659, F 282, etc.), rarely vice versa. — No(u)ght, the emphasized form, is secured by rymes (e. g. A 4117, B 1701, 1777, G 269, H 147), and is occasionally used in other cases by Mss. of the A-Type (by Ell., e. g. A 303, 789, 1548, 1746, C 863, D 124, etc.), which, on the whole, much prefer nat; only in Gg. not is found more frequently (s. A 320, 573, 1145, . . 3538, 3556, 3707 . . B 1304, 1464 . . C 618, D 208, 987 . . G 288, 469 . . H 149, 200, etc.). But nat in all four Mss. of this Type (also Eg.) is by no means rare (e. g. A 4361, B 645, 1353, 1411, 1466, 1528 . . 3175, 3444, 3474 . . 4083, 4131, 4321 . . C 585, 611, 642, 747 . . D 118, 154, 217, 229, E 448, 488, 1138, 1139 . . F 1224, 1225, 1449 . . G 53, 388, 475 . . H 19, 33, etc. etc.). On the other hand, the same form is sometimes to be met with in Co. and Pe., seldom in Lan., Har.<sup>4</sup>, instead of the ordinary not or nouzt, etc. (e. g. A 204, 1940, 2813, 3599, 3887, B 4, 32, 40, 2151, C 612, F 279, 391, G 312, 451, H 86, etc.) — Besides the interchange between d and p in koude, the same is also, though not regularly, found in other words, especially in Mss. of the B-Type: so in alper (s. § 2, B 2393, § 3, A 710, § 57, G 423, etc.), and in quop (§ 68, B 1405, § 70, D 1685, § 71, D 1290; s. also § 64, F 421/22); of the A-Type, only in Eg. (koth, s. § 54, B 1625). Sometimes the voiced and unvoiced explosives alternate with each other in the same Mss., so g and k in gan and kan (s. § 1, A 1536, § 64, B 3587, § 70, B 889), or in nouns proper (§ 28, I 109, § 69, E 210, etc., § 8, B 3847, § 66, 733, etc.), occasionally p and b (§ 70, F 518, I 98), t and d (§ 69, E 592, § 70, B 4210, E 234, I 177), f and v (§ 68, E 1420, H 42), ch and g (§ 70, B 2289), j and ch (ib. A 1721), etc. —

The number of agreements (inclusive of frequent Latin notes and superscriptions) between Dd. (Eg.) and the other two Mss. is very unequal in different Fragments. But if we find rather few in A, this is no doubt owing to the circumstance that Dd. (Eg.) just in this part (cp. § 54) goes its own way. When, on the other hand, the frequent occurrence of these similarities strikes us in Fragn. C, we must bear in mind that especially here Gg. is for a great part wanting, so that, if its leaves had not been lost, the majority of these readings would most probably find their place in § 1 or 2. — On the whole, the readings of Ell., Hen., Dd. quoted in this § are preferable to those of Gg., Cogn., Har.<sup>4</sup>, or at least not worse than these, though in a comparatively few cases the latter suggest some corrections of the former Mss.; e. g. A 803, B 4?, 151?, 1062, 1623, 1648?, 1743, 1745, 1868, 3138?, 3622, 4612, 4636, C 313, 808, D 368, 544?, 885, 955, 1093?, 1405, 1559, E 1063, I 562?, 687?. —

The agreements between Ell., Hen., Dd. and the Cogr. (or B-Type) are not many, and few of any importance. Still the readings are, as a rule, not bad, and especially in a) (e.g. B 3146, C 111, E 1335, I 297, 492, 568, 692, 747, 1051) and c) (e.g. B 2289, 2817, 4008, C 593, D 460, I 838), the similarities between Co. or Pe. and the A-Type can scarcely be otherwise explained than by a direct influence of some Ms. of the latter upon the former.

*The near relation of Ell. and Hen. is not only shown by a great number of mostly good readings, but also by their frequent and almost literal agreements in spelling and grammar, as well as in their Latin glosses and headings. But they are not quite faultless, and especially striking is the mistake B 2723, and also the observation that most irregularities or mistakes occur in Fragment D (300, 375, 727, 757?, 1070, 1308, 331, 1364?, 1377, 1710, 1783, 1804?, 1870?, 1918 [s. The readings in a) are almost faultless (only B 4561 and D 697 might be corrected), and seem to represent the original, from which Gg., Dd., Har.<sup>4</sup>. (cp. § 46) have deviated; s. especially their mistaken corrections D 634, 1564, E 2144. Also the agreements in b) and c) are, though of less importance, mostly reliable (exc. F 533), while those in the following sections are of a more doubtful or indifferent character (faulty d) A 2561, 3661, B 447, D 895, F 1358, e) G 217, f) A 1707, g) C 852, D 815). Still there are enough to make also here occasional consultations of Ell., Hen. by the scribes of Co., Lan. or Pe., probable; e. g. e) A 2370, d) I 432, g) B 2765, D 1938. —

Only a few places (A 4090, E 2220 [Co.]) wanting correction, the question naturally arises whether in the other agreements Har.<sup>4</sup> has by itself retained the reading of the common original, from which the other Mss. have separated themselves, or whether these coincidences result from later corrections introduced by the scribe of Har.<sup>4</sup>. But the number of cases mentioned in this § is scarcely sufficient for a decision. —

The great majority of the readings of these three Mss. are correct, sometimes even of importance (s. e. g., A 2971, B 2726, 2944, 3460, C 711, D 575 sqq., 941, G 1188/89, 1283/84, 1450), but they are not without mistakes (A 1147, B 916, 971?, 1005, 2967, D 311, 857, G 912, H 157, perhaps also F 484, G 862, 1210, 1421, I 947, 965). On the other hand, the distribution of their agreements over the different Tales is remarkable: there are none in the Shipm., Prior., Thop., and Sec. Nun, and comparatively few in A, C, D. But when we find the largest share in the Chan. Yem., this is easily explained by the fact that this tale is entirely wanting in Hen., so that Ell., Gg., Dd. (Eg.) represent here alone the A-Type. —

The majority of agreements are found in G (Chan. Yem.), which may be explained in the same way as in § 13. The remainder, though not very numerous, present, on the whole, good readings, some of which (A 1424, 1699, B 66, E 2230, F 299, I 470 sqq., 605, etc.) will sufficiently prove the near relation of the 4 Mss. in question (s. also G 75, 585, 766, 1153), from which Hen. has apparently separated itself under the influence of some Ms. of the Cogr. S. § 40, etc. —

The distribution of the common readings of Ell., Gg., Har.<sup>4</sup> over the different Fragments is very unequal. Whilst those in A are comparatively frequent, and mostly appear correct (only in A 421, 2799, 3090?, 3676, H 251, Hen. and its companions are preferable), there are only few in B, and these of no great importance, and none in C. But in the first part of D, Ell., etc. are several times corrected by Hen., etc. (better only 212 and, perhaps, later 1401), whereas in the few cases in E and F the value of the two groups is about the same, and in G, Ell., etc. offer again a number of better readings. In I, at last, the differences are not of much consequence—only in 405 Ell., etc. seem decidedly better. Cp. § 23. —

The agreements of Ell. and Dd. (or Eg.) are pretty equally distributed (only G—cp. § 13, etc.—oversteps the average) over all Fragments, and, in their majority, offer good or, at least, tolerable readings. Still, there are also a good number of faulty ones, more or less plausibly corrected in Hen., etc. (e. g. A 287, 944?, 1260, 1272, 2445, B 153, 513, 940, C 593, D 1450, E 1506, G 559, 772, 776, 817, 953, 1056, 1205, 1236, 1303, 1475, H 79, I 336, etc.), so that in some doubtful cases (e. g. B 5) the authority of Ell., Dd. is not firmly enough established.

*The common readings of Ell., Dd. (Eg.), and Har.<sup>4</sup> are mostly acceptable, sometimes better than those of the remainder of Mss. (especially in G and I), worse only in a few cases (A 927?, D 888?, E 17, 1802, F 260, G 814). But as they occur in passages often widely separated from each other, there cannot have been any close connection between the former two and Har.<sup>4</sup>, whose scribe, however, may have occasionally made use of some Ms. or other of the A-Type. The common readings of Ell., Har.<sup>4</sup> and Co., etc. in section a) apparently represent those of their common original, from which Hen., Gg., Dd. (Eg.) have deviated in some way or other (doubtful remains I 689) [cp. § 28]. The agreements in the following sections are tolerably correct (really faulty ones are perhaps only b) D 2175, f) C 621, F 94, G 267), but on the whole too insignificant to prove any nearer relation between the Mss. in question. —

The number of mistakes in this § found in Ell., Co., etc. are larger than usual; we will mention a) B 3861, 4331, E 503, 1964, F 1410, G 497; b) B 2402, 2510, D 2126, I 182, 986; c) B 2277, D 1361; d) A 534; e) A 2075, 3000, B 2247, C 862; f) B 653, 2061, E 110, 588, G 510; g) A 497, 1362, 2155, B 2089, 3611, 4045, 4167, E 337, F 421; h) B 118?, 3973, D 2185, 2249. They are mostly corrected by Hen., etc.; but, on the other hand, there are also several cases in which Ell., Co., etc. are better than the other combination of Mss.; so in a) A 161, 524, C 644, 867, D 187, 499, 1406, E 338, etc. Though the majority of these agreements are not of much consequence, there are some showing that a certain connection between Ell. and the Cogr. must exist., e. g. a) D 499, F 1410, I 426, 1077; b) A 2602, B 2289; d) G 7, I 1062; e) E 6; f) D 2259, I 731; g) B 4045; h) B 3980, C 94, I 766, etc. Cp. § 4, etc. —

Whilst in A the common readings of Ell. and Har.<sup>4</sup> are almost faultless, the number of mistakes increases in the following Fragments (B 2399, 4575, C 405, 589, 636, D 37, 113, 1317, F 62, 481, G 28, 226, 976, I 525, 643, etc.), in which their agreements, besides, are sporadic and mostly not of much consequence. Especially remarkable, however, is the evident blunder in G 226, which can scarcely be otherwise explained than by supposing that the scribe of Har.<sup>4</sup> or he of his direct source made occasionally use of Ell. —

Nota secundum sanctum Gregorium, 96. The firste accioun of penitence, 97. Nota secundum sanctum Augustinum, 102. Of. III. spes of penaunce, etc., etc.) must also be taken into consideration. Of the other Mss., also Hen. contains such sidenotes, but they are by a later hand, while those in Har.<sup>2</sup> so far as the fragments printed from this Ms. enable us to judge, correspond, though not regularly or always literally, pretty well with the same in Ell. Those in Co., Se., and Pe. are by far not so frequent, and content themselves mostly with adducing the names of the authors mentioned in the Tale. Only in a few instances (e. g. 392 sqq.: Inobedient, Auauntour, Dispitous, etc.), Se. drops hints at the contents of the text. Though it is by no means certain that these notes or those mentioned before, are all the poet's own productions, they at least show that the scribe was anxious to make his text as complete and clear as possible. —*

As for the above readings, Ell. may, in those cases where the other Mss. differ from it and from each other, have kept alone the one of their common original, in others the scribe may have corrected its evident mistakes, sometimes perhaps only by chance. Still there are some instances, especially where this codex is the only authority for lines not found in any other (B 3721/22, F 1455/56, 1493 sqq.), in which no other explanation seems possible but that the copyist of Ell. had access to some better Ms. now lost to us. —

*The list of faulty readings in Ell. is not small, though in some fifty cases diminished by the corrections made according to Prof. Flügel's collation of the Ms. mentioned before. Most of them are evidently only slips of the pen, but there are also a good many passages in which the scribe has spoilt the metre (indicated in brackets) and sometimes even the sense, so that his text, though on the whole carefully written, is not always reliable. Still the number of mistakes is much exceeded by most of the other Mss., except Hen. and Co., which, however, are incomplete, and show some perversions from which Ell. is free, nor do they contain so many isolated good readings as the latter codex. A priori it would seem that the agreements of Hen., etc. represent the common readings of the A-Type, from which Ell., by itself or influenced by other Mss., has deviated, and there are, indeed, a few cases in which the former are better than all others (B 2260, 3861, E 1359 [Ell. omits], F 287, I 698, perhaps also B 3695, 3944, I 109). But the majority being indifferent or faulty, and their total only small, the evidence of this list cannot be considered as decisive. Still these agreements, together with some common mistakes (B 1347, 2248, 2505, F 1161, 1426, etc.), are sufficient to prove that Hen., Gg., and Dd. (Eg.) had one common source. Cp. § 31.

As the value of these readings has already been stated in the §§ quoted above, there is here not much more to be said about them. The connection of Hen., etc. and the Cogr., so far as represented here, is evidently not very close, but there being a few good readings shared by both (e. g. c.) F 94, d) B 2510, D 1934, 2175, I 603), these may go back to their common original, from which Ell., etc. may have separated themselves in different ways. —

The number of the passages in which Hen., Dd. (or Eg.) are better than the other Mss. (we mention A 2683, B 4594, C 2, 291, 704, 862, D 371, 1994, E 1505, F 46, 622, 1100, 1440, H 217) is about equal to those in which they are worse (A 2723, 2779 sqq., 2829, C 350, D 176, 431, 702, E 49, F 518, G 382, 512, I 900, etc.). Taken together with their other common readings, they are, though not very numerous, sufficient to show a certain affinity between these two Mss., in I between Eg., Ch., and Ad.<sup>1</sup>, which is however not so close as that between Ell. and Hen. (§ 9), but somewhat closer than that between Hen. and Gg. (§ 31). —

The single sections of this § are of different length and importance. Number a) contains several good readings already mentioned in §§ 13 and 16 (F 338), so that we here, on the whole, get a similar impression of the relation of Hen. to Mss. of the B-Type as stated in §§ 29 & 37. In d) I 966 is remarkable, while in e) nearly all readings are acceptable, though not exactly better than those in the other Mss. Of more interest, however, is g), where specially A 3697, E 511, F 2, 6, I 433 point to some direct connection between Pe. and the other two, with which opinion are to be compared those expressed in §§ 4, 11, 18, etc. In h) B 102 looks very doubtful, whilst 4585 seems to represent a later intended correction introduced into Hen. and its companions. —

There are only few agreements between Hen. and the Cogr. worth consideration (a) D 389, 888, b) D 91, c) B 463, etc.), and the majority of the others are such as may have arisen independently from each other. But there are some striking similarities (s. a) B 4636, E 1213 sqq., I 470 sqq., b) E 1305/6, c) A 1699, B 3938, d) I 515, e) B 3197 sqq., f) E 336, g) E 2419, F 1, h) F 673 sqq.—for h) A 858, B 5, I refer to the remark made in § 29; for Ch. and Ad.<sup>1</sup>, s. d) I 822, e) I 909 sqq., g) I 958 & 1092—) which prove clearly that some particular connection must have existed between Hen. and the Cogr. As these agreements do not occur in all Mss. of the Cogr. alike, it is not so likely that the common original of this group made use of Hen., in these places, as that the scribe of Hen. occasionally consulted a Ms. of the Cogr., not one of those printed here, but rather of one which must have been nearer to their common source. Besides we must not forget that the whole character of Hen. is—as shown in the first 12 §§—essentially that of the A-Type. —

There are a few good readings found here (s. A 49, 74, 140, 217 ?, 1320, 1981, 3350, D 2181, etc.), but scarcely any that might not have been corrected by each of the two copyists without the influence of another text. Nor are the other agreements (except, perhaps, B 1233, E 444, 496, I 247, 618, 884, 911) able to prove any close relation between these two Mss. Still there is some indirect connection not impossible. Cp. § 39, etc. —

The number of deviations in Hen. from the common text is comparatively small, so much larger, however, that of Ch. and Ad.<sup>1</sup> in the latter half of Fragment I. Though Hen. contains a few readings which seem better than those of the other Mss. (A 324, B 1850, D 844, 1887, E 1716, F 657, G 32, 80, H 205, I 387, perhaps also A 3716, F 20), they do not offer much more than slight improvements of the metre by suppressing or adding a syllable, so that these particularities of Hen. can certainly not be traced back to a better source than the rest had. Thus neither its addition of ll. A 252b/c, its original omissions of ll. A 637/38, E 1305/6, 2230, and especially of the whole of the Chan. Yem. T., nor its peculiar arrangement of the Tales (s. p. 5) can claim any authority. Curious, besides, are its alterations in B 234, G 217, etc., and I 1. —

(B 4307, D 722, E 1964, F 545, G 761, 1157, perhaps also 281 & 1087), whose mistakes, however, may be explained as common errors of their scribes. —*

*As for the agreements in sections a)–d), we can refer to the remarks in the §§ quoted therein, specially § 10. In the following ones we find a few readings (e) D 2249, E 773, F 1141, f) B 860, D 676, 887, g) B 3723], in most of which the metre is improved merely by restoring an -e omitted by the other Mss. The remainder are not of much importance; still there are some coincidences (e) I 485, f) D 1792, G 72, g) A 672, etc.) which can scarcely be accidental, so that some occasional connection between Gg., Dd. and one or the other of the Co.-Mss. becomes probable. —*

More than the few readings which regularize the metre in the same way as in the preceding § (B 4561, D 300, E 1566, 2140, G 1286, perhaps also B 3953, D 697), some other agreements (s. A 60, 3643, D 634, 704, 727, 729, 1011, 1564, I 1077) show a certain relation between these three Mss., especially in Fragment D; whether the common source of Gg., Dd. — which stand closer together—now and then borrowed from Har.<sup>4</sup>, or vice versâ, must be left undecided here. —

Some of these similarities contain—mostly metrical—improvements of the other texts. Those in subdivision a) have already been mentioned in § 6 (B 1062 — to which may be added c) B 674, e) A 1312, etc. — B 1868, D 885 [sche], 955, 1559, perhaps also B 3138, D 544, I 562); in b) we find B 3916, C 716, E 819, 1063; in e) A 756 (1312), B 655, 981, 3129, 3383, 3912, C 606, E 640, G 373; in g) A 3285, D 1028. For h) G, it will be sufficient to refer to § 20. But in the majority of these cases (specially in e) the corrections being of the same nature as that described in § 45—i. e. traceable to an older practice of the scribes rather than to the influence of a common original—, it may appear doubtful whether they can be adduced as a proof for a direct connection between the Mss. in question. But besides the rather considerable number of this sort of agreements, there are also some striking common mistakes (e. g. a) B 3300, F 498, I 626, e) E 277, g) A 2012, B 2432) pointing more distinctly into that direction. Cp. also the next §§. —

*Without counting the omissions of single letters, which occur frequently enough in Gg. (e. g. final t in words like rygh, A 288, Knygh, C 180, nygh, B 3717, Tha(t), A 263, parlemen, A 306; or gh(z) in knyth, A 64, outhe, A 505, thoute 984, hyte, E 1777, pour F 237; of l. in wit, B 371, schat, B 4208; of h in t(h)e, B 4216, to, A 498, sotly, G 1111; w in too (two), A 4129, (w)ho, B 2274, etc.), the number of its mistakes—in spite of the loss of several leaves—is enormous. The thoughtless scribe often spoils the sense entirely (e. g. in Fragm. A: 345, 431, 563, 604, 742, 1038, 1174, 1670, 1682, 1769, 2088, 2509, 2602, 2751, 2768, 2789, 2870, 2883, 2973, 3004, etc.), and at the same time the ryme (e. g. A 1274, 2696, 3800, B 415, 1111, 1122. C 646, etc. etc.), or omits whole lines (e. g. A 290, B 2226/27, 2282, 2418/19, 2475/77, 2551/52, 2684/85, C 743/44, etc. etc.). Though a corrector's hand has tried to do away with a number of these negligencies—of which alterations only occasionally could be taken notice here (s. A 563, 698, 990, 1769, 2060, B 174, 379, 724, 2059/60, E 219, 300, etc.), these corrections are not always happy, and most errors have remained untouched. Still there are a few lines in which Gg. gives a better reading than all or most other Mss.; so A 396, 1498 ?, 4056, 4220 (cp. D 1456), B 43, 1321, 2332 (3ow), 4174 ?, C 747, D 120, 146, 575 ?, 623, 692, 865 ?, E 1511 ?, 2230 ?, F 950 ?, 989, 1379, G 521, 1085, etc. But in all these cases the same explanation is applicable as in §§ 45 & 47, so that they certainly are not due to the scribe's better intelligence, nor go back to some older source; and even the additions in I 273, 654, & 700 can very well be ascribed to some corrector sufficiently read in ecclesiastical literature. —*

*There are only a few readings worth consideration (s. a) A 1227, D 836, 1091, b) B 3384, I 351 (cp. 355), d) A 2019, E 2218, g) E 583, h) B 3081, D 1710), but there are a great number to show that a close connection must exist between Dd. and the Cognr., of which we will only point out here the more striking instances: a) A 336, 3793, B 1350, D 1370 to 71, 1518, E 490, 2242; b) B 2190, 2387, 3059, D 1, 1768, 1820, E 459/60, 524, I 351; d) B 4136, D 496; e) E 385, I 443, 598, 682, 726, 766, 966; f) A 370, 475, 504, 549; B 1, 1881, 1933, D 653, E 1308, F 671 to 72, 950; g) A 550, 1398, 2122, 2809, D 1300, 1816; h) A 963, B 3981, I 241, etc. There are even a few passages indicating traces of the mutual influence of these Mss. on each other. Otherwise it is not possible, without examining the intermediate stages of the evolution of the text, to assert to which of the Co.-Mss. Dd. is most indebted (or vice versâ); perhaps so, that for one Fragment one was consulted, for the next, another (observe the numerous agreements of Dd. and Co. (e) in I, whilst in g) and f) Fragm. A shows more similarities). — As for i), the few portions taken in the 6-Text from Ad.<sup>1</sup> are in so far interesting as they furnish some further evidence that this Ms. forms a sort of under-group with Dd. (or Eg.). S. Specimens, etc. I, § 2 sqq. —*

Among these agreements, though not very numerous, are several, especially in the Gen. Prol. (212, 320, 476, 648, 772), then in B (1403), in D (829, 1131), in E (551, 779), H (15, 46, 92, 89), I (136, 212, 338, 458, 622, 655), which certainly cannot be merely accidental; most curious is B 1403, where Dd. combines the readings of both Har.<sup>4</sup> and the rest. The existence of some relation between these two (or three) Mss. is further shown in ll. A 364, 686?, B 4283, id. D 1426, F 76, 211, 256, 327?, 585, 1357, H 76, which offer some slight improvements of the general text, though mostly only with regard to the metre. Cp. also §§ 51 & 52. —

*belonging to the Cogn.*).* — 1087. forgiffe—forgiue me. 1090. beseke—bisekyng.] —

Most numerous are the deviations from the general text of Dd. (whose scribe does not forget to mention his name in several places—s. A 3801**) and Eg.—so far as the published extracts, to fill up the losses of Dd., from this Ms. allow us to judge—in the first part of Fragm. A and in Fragm. I (Eg. alone), next in D (Wife's T.) and E (March. T.), whilst in the other parts their number does not exceed the average of the better Ms. This observation suggests the conclusion that the common source of Dd. and Eg. either followed different originals in different parts, or that this source had been written by different hands. Amidst frequent mistakes (so whole ll. have been omitted—A 219/20, 2754 sqq., 2779 sqq., B 2094, 2266/67, 2390, 3570, I 226, 373, 383, 451/52, etc., or transposed—A 156/55, 2972/71, B 4032/34, C 335 sqq., D 1964/63, etc.), there are also a number of readings—s. A 415, 4111, 4132, 4255/56 (these on account of the dialect), B 1602, 4150, 4266, 4368, 4379, 4536, 4576, 4608, D 104, 108 ?, 188 ?, 1789, E 1512, 2110, 2127, 2240 ?, 2325 ?, F 251 ?, 620, 657 ?, 1443, G 1171, H 173 —, which, if not better than those of the other Mss., at least deserve consideration. Now it is evident that some corrector has been at work in both Mss. (s. the remarks to ll. A 568, 1772, 1838, 3120, B 195, 2585, E 15, 49, G 711, etc., and notice the reading in B 212, which combines in it those of the A-and the B-Type). But whether some spurious ll. (D between 44/45, E 1680, G 1393/95, etc.), among which B 1995 is probably to be reckoned, as it has the same ending as 1990, are due to the same or to some predecessor of his, must remain doubtful. On the other hand, it is curious to see that the several alterations found in the Nun's Pr. T., B 4150 sqq., are followed by ll. 4637–51, which, besides in Dd., are only preserved in Ad.<sup>1</sup> and Ro.<sup>1</sup> (s. § 52i), and certainly are genuine. Thus there is a great probability that also the other readings—or at least part of them—quoted above together with the latter have been derived from a better text not known to the other scribes, and so would have to be considered as authoritative. —

*) DR. FURNIVALL suggested Laud Ms. K 50, which he has however revoked in the Forewords to his Edition of the Dd.-Ms., p. VII.

**) The author of a later scribble at the end of the Pard. T. calls himself “Wyllyam pully”, but finds that this book is “for no wyse men but ffor Iaks & boyes”!

The readings which these three Mss., and occasionally others of the same class (β), have in common are not very frequent, except in Fragm. I, for the greater part of which, however, Se. takes the place of Co., which, though very similar, do, of course, not always agree with each other. But that there exists some relation between Pe., Lan., and Har.<sup>4</sup> is especially made evident by their common mistakes in α) B 3018, D 678, E 283, I 304, 692, 820, 911, β) I 736, 747, etc. As better readings commend themselves only B 3600 [metr.] and E 1068. —

In the readings α) A 509, 3965, B 2004, etc., 2110, 3982, D 681, 1153, E 731, β) A 868, these two Mss. have—the same in the other combinations of this group—retained, or by chance adopted, those forms of words which suit the metre better than those found in the other codices, whilst the name found in E 590, etc. corresponds more with the form given in the Lat. original. The majority of these agreements, however, have no other value than to show that Co. and Har.<sup>4</sup> go finally back to the same source, from which Pe., Lan., etc. have more or less deviated. —

The agreements of Pe. and Har.<sup>4</sup> are especially frequent in Mel., next, comparatively, in the Pard., otherwise only moderate in number. Though scarcely one of them is of any importance for a critical text, they show distinctly, even often in their spellings, the affinity of these two Mss. That neither Pe. has borrowed directly from Har.<sup>4</sup>, nor vice versâ, is made evident by the readings enumerated in β), so that we have to consider these agreements more or less as the original text of the B-Type, partly abandoned by the common source of Co. and Lan. —

*These common readings show undoubtedly that Co., Lan., Pe., and the other Mss. of the same Type, so far as the samples given in β) let us see, must go back to one common source, the many mistakes of which each tried to correct as well as it could (S. §§ 4, 7, &c. and the following ones). These agreements are nearly equally distributed over the whole of the Tales; the comparatively greater number in the Frank. T., e. g., is explained by the absence of Har.<sup>4</sup> in this part, and the few instances registered in the Chan. Ye. are supplied in β (Lich. for Hen.). In some cases the readings of this group present a more regular verse, rarely a better sense than those of the other Mss.; so A 3501, etc., B 4 (β), 755, 1311, 1826, 2025, 3852, D 324, 368, 727?, 1093, 1277 (β), E 405, 1017 (so om.), 2220, 2273, G 424, 521, I 610. But considering the frequent errors, omissions, and spurions ll., they cannot claim any authority. —*

Though there can be no doubt that Co. and Lan. are nearer related to each other than to any other of the other six Mss. (which evidence is even supported in those parts where the former is supplied from Se.), it is curious to observe the great difference in the number of their agreements in the different Tales. Most frequent are those in Melib., next in the Pard. and Clerk, whilst there are only very few in the Reve, Man of L., Frere, & Squire. But this disproportion may be explained by assuming that the scribe of the common source of Co., Lan. made only partly use of a better Ms. to correct the mistakes of his original, and by the fact that in the last named tales the various readings are in general not so numerous as in the others. — There are only a few cases in which Co., Lan. offer a text worth attention, mostly by improving the metre; s. A 2458, 4290, D 1028, 1564, whilst the additions in B 2525/26, perhaps also in B 2389 and I 754, and the marginal notes at B 3573 seem to go back to some better source unknown to the other copyists. —

Though not so numerous as the agreements in § 65, those of Co. (later Se.) and Pe. are frequent and some also striking enough (s. F 346/47) to show that some relation between them must exist. Probably they represent the original reading of the common source of the Cogr., from which Lan. deviates, partly following some other Ms., partly spoiling the text through negligence. — A few good readings occur also in this group: A 421, 2626, B 3515, D 376, 1063, I 610. Considering some Latin notes not found in other Mss. or only in those of the same Type (e. g. D 30, 774), we may suppose that they were introduced by some ecclesiastical corrector. — As for β), the common readings we can adduce here, few as they are, help to corroborate the mutual affinity between the Mss. of the B-Type. —

The agreements of Pe. and Lan. not being so frequent as those of Co. & Lan. (except in I, for the greater part of which, however, Co. is replaced by Se.), it follows that their relation is not so close as that between the latter two (cp. § 65). Notwithstanding they are numerous and partly significant enough to show that both Mss. were derived from one common source, from which Co. in those cases deviates, evidently trying to correct some of its mistakes by some Ms. of the A-Type. There are only very few readings (A 3114, B 2966, D 364, 672) that may come into consideration for a critical text. —

*Though the number of mistakes and doubtful deviations from the general text in Co. is, comparatively, not very large—thus proving that its scribe must have, on the whole, carefully copied his direct original—, the number of better readings than those in the other Mss. is very small: only ll. A 558, 4020, 4161, B 1268, 1883, D 859, E 429, G 740 contain such, mostly metrical, improvements. Se., which serves to fill up the gaps of Co., on the other hand, seems to be much worse (s. especially Fragm. I), although in some degree related to this Ms.—The similarities between Co. and the Mss. mentioned in β) are too rare to fix their mutual connection. —*

Lan. has evidently been written by a Northern scribe; but though some of his deviations (s. A 992, 2043, 2324, 3746, etc.) may be excused on account of his dialect, by far the most are owing to his great carelessness, so that this Ms. is of very little value for the reconstruction of a critical text. Still there are a very few readings which, perhaps only altered by chance, are worth consideration; s. A 1260, B 4302, D 2222, F 291, 801, G 827. It is however curious to see the alteration of 'sone' into 'dohter' in G 62, which, though it appears more correct, was scarcely introduced by the poet himself. —

Pe., though its scribe was not quite so negligent as the one of Lan., on the whole is of as little value, offering but rarely some slight improvement (e. g. B 973, 3910, D 182). The majority of its mistakes or gratuitous alterations are found in the two prose tales (but the same also in other Mss. — s. §§ 50, 69, 71—), and—remarkably—in the Pard. and Cl. Besides, some peculiar forms (s. D 1730, 1772 E 229) appear only in certain parts. But otherwise the character of this Ms. being pretty well the same throughout (for some Northern forms s. A 4105, B 1964, D 269, 2009), we need not conclude from the foregoing observations that its copyist has made use of different originals in those parts. For, as shown by my earlier researches (s. p. 2 sqq.), and partly by β, most of its deviations in the Pard. & Cl. are shared by several Mss. forming with Pe. the most numerous undergroup. —

So far as the occasional extracts from Sl.<sup>1</sup>, Har.<sup>2</sup>, Ro.<sup>1</sup>, Lich., etc. offered in the Six-Text allow us to judge, the relation of Pe. with them is much closer than with any other Ms. published here, which corresponds very well with the remarks made in α). If they now and then agree with other Mss. (s. §§ 68 β and 69 β), Pe. seems to have deviated from the reading of their common original. —

A 2490, B 3872, D 2052), there are several giving a better metrical shape to the verse than offered by the other Mss.—s., e. g., ll. A 40, 516, 741, 764, 778, 1898, 1906, 2385, 2822, 2840, 2892, 2904, 3071, 3104, 3236, 3483, 3587, 3624, 3676, 3715; B 472, 1060, 4368; C 529, 747, 935; D 55, 935, 1277, 1370, 1405, 1642,*

1647, 2291; E 965, 2325; F 291, 330, 1475; G 34, 1247, 1266, 1442; H 132, etc.—there are only few readings in which this Ms. deserves the preference in other respects; s. A 363, B 4389, E 31 & 1147, I 799, 1051, perhaps also A 2037. We can therefore not decide in favour of Har.<sup>4</sup> in such cases where the text of Ell. and some or all remaining codices is of equal value or, at least, possibly so; e. g., with regard to the metre, A 134, 407, 752, 1797, 3036, 3941, 4066, B 1156, C 405, D 269, 270, etc.; or, according to the sense or the wording, in ll. A 179 [both wrong?], 257, 269, 411, 540, 548, 559, 746, 782, 803, 1514, 2874, 3000, 3477, 4280, 4310, C 320, 326/27, E 1781, 2169, etc, etc.; especially if we consider that some alterations are apparently due to the corrector's misunderstanding of the poet's exact meaning; such are found in A 408, 2062, B 64, 323, 1179, 3292 (fend), 4380, D 145, H 210.— Thus the transposition of ll. D 1295/96 and the substitution in l. A 179 seem to be merely the gratuitous proceedings of a scribe who had rightly begun to mistrust the reliability of his original, and was evidently looking for the support of some better source (s. §§ 26, 41, 49, 53); a later hand then inserted omitted ll. from a Ms. of the A-Type; s. B 3364, 3466, G 1057, 1283/84, I 4. But that the earlier corrector did not shrink from evident falsifications in order to fill up the gaps, or supply illegible passages, of his original, is shown by several spurious lines, and even the addition of such (D 2004 sqq.). The text constructed in this manner seems then to have been very negligently copied by the scribe of Har.<sup>4</sup>. In spite of some good readings, the introduction of a few Latin sidenotes (A 4181, I 125, 133), and the rather frequent doubling of synonymous words in the prose tales (e. g. B 2285, 2421, 2524, I 475, 477, 516, 934, etc.) not found in any other text, we can therefore scarcely admit any direct connection of this Ms. with the poet's original, as it by far more frequently sides with the B- than the A-Type (s. §§ 1 sqq.), though avoiding many mistakes of the Co.-group (§ 64, etc.). —

§ 72. Concluding Remarks. The results of the foregoing researches may be summed up under two heads:

I. Assertions formerly made with regard to parts of the Canterbury Tales and now to be extended to the whole of them.

- a) All Mss. are to be divided into two large groups or Types, A and B, of which the former is by far the better (s. §§ 1—2, 55—56).
- b) Of the 8 leading Mss. Ell., Hen., Gg., and Dd. (or Eg.) belong to the A-TYPE, Co., Pe., Lan., Har.<sup>4</sup>, to the B-TYPE, (Cp. Introduction, p. 1).
- c) Not one of them can be the direct source of another.

- d) In the A-TYPE, Ell. and Hen. (§ 9), in the B-TYPE, Co. and Lan. (§ 65) are the nearest related Mss. The latter, together with Pe., form a group clearly distinguished from Har.<sup>4</sup> (§ 64).
- e) Ell., though not faultless, contains the best text of all, being the most complete, and representing very nearly the poet's language (§ 27).
- f) The Mss. from which only extracts have been published seem to take the same positions throughout as assigned to them in the Specimens (s. Introduction, p. 1, § 52i, and β) in §§ 64—70).
- g) Not one scribe understands exactly the poet's metrical rules, though some of them may now and then have tried to restore defective verses.

II. Conclusions now to be drawn for the first time, at least in a distinct form.

- a) Not one of the Mss. treated here is the poet's original or directly connected with it, as there are some passages in which all known texts are evidently wrong; s. A 179 (§ 71), B 1826, 3657, 3734 (§ 2), C 826, E 2230 (§ 15), B 2252/53 (omitted; cp. the French text), I 443 (Jacob and Joseph confounded with each other), etc.
- b) The relevant agreements of Mss. with others outside their groups must in most cases be explained by assuming Contamination. Thus, if we see that Dd. has abandoned the reading of Ell., Hen., Gg. (§ 3), we shall find that, unless spoilt by its scribe, it is in some way influenced by Mss. of the B-TYPE (§§ 51—53), with which it is rather closely connected. Similarly it is the case with Gg. (cp. §§ 6 and 47—49) and with Hen. (§§ 13 and 39—41), which, however, incline more to Mss. of the Co.-group than to Har.<sup>4</sup>. But when this latter Ms. sides with three Mss. of the A-TYPE (§§ 5, 8, 15), we have most probably often to recognize in such a coincidence the reading of their common original, from which the fourth Ms. has deviated in the just described manner. The connection of Har.<sup>4</sup>, however, with one or two Mss. of the other class (§§ 12, 15, 23, 26) will rather have to be traced back to an occasional influence of the A-TYPE on Har.<sup>4</sup>, which is again contamination. The same is to be said of the incidental agreements of Mss. of the Co.-group. with Ell. and some of its companions (§§ 4, 7, 10, 14, 18, 22, 25) found most frequently in Co. and Pe., then in Lan. This circumstance again furnishes the explanation for the relations between Har.<sup>4</sup> and respectively two Mss. of the Co.-group. registered in §§ 57 sqq., the common readings of which evidently represent those of their common original, from which the third has frequently separated itself through contamination with the A-TYPE.

- c) But Contamination may also take place within the same group. So another explanation is scarcely possible when we find that Hen., on one hand, is closely related to Ell., and, on the other, shows a certain affinity with Gg. (§ 31) and with Dd. (§ 35) alone; and similarly, that Gg. is equally connected with Ell. (§ 16) and with Dd. (§43), deviating here from Hen.
- d) Yet these complications are not the only obstacles on our way to Chaucer's original text. For sometimes we find certain passages or expressions which are evidently genuine, but only handed down to us in one Type or in one or two Mss. Such is the case with ll. B 3721/22, F 1455/56, 1493—98 in Ell. (§ 27a), ll. B 4637—51 in Dd. and two others (§ 52i), some marginal notes in Co., Lan. (§ 65, B 3573), ll. B 1163—90 (Man of Law's End Link) in Mss. of the B-Type (§ 56β), some readings in Har.<sup>4</sup> (§ 71), etc. The best method to get out of these difficulties would be the assumption of the existence of some better and more complete Ms. now lost, to which one or the other scribe of the said Mss. had access. It will, however, not be necessary to employ this expedient to the above-mentioned End-Link, as this one may have been in the common original of both types, and have been rejected by the redactor of the A-TYPE on account of the uncertainty of its place and reference (as he had also rejected the spurious Gamelyn of the B-TYPE), nor in some other instances (e. g. § 50, p. 196), where certain amendments or additions may have been introduced by some intelligent corrector or self-important versifier (e. g. A 2681/82; s. § 1.)
- d) Next Ell. only Hen., part of Dd., and Co. offer a somewhat reliable text, whilst the other Mss. are, on account of their numerous mistakes, to be treated with great caution (§§ 50, 69—71).
- e) The supposition of some scholars that the single Fragments may have circulated before the (relative) completion of the whole poem is not borne out by the appearance of the Mss., which mostly show the same character throughout; some differences in the treatment of single Tales (not Fragments) have been sufficiently explained in the remarks to §§ 6, 8, 9, 13, 15, 54, 62, 64, 65, etc., or may be due to some indistinctness of the poet's handwriting in later altered passages. All other questions, especially concerning the filiation of these Mss., must be left open from the reasons mentioned in the Introduction, p. 2.
